I made the following changes to the site presented in the URL I have provided

1. I have reduced the amount of words on each page
2. I have connected my different sites to a homepage where you can access them
3. I have a show don't tell method where I use as little wordage as possible to get the point across and let the user interpret what they should do on each page
4. Each page has a consistent look, making them feel connected and not like separate projects
5. Nav bar is seamless and allows natural transitions between pages
